Foreword

With the guidance of mother and teacher we have passed the milestone of childhood and school days. We have been shown the right road and now we must pass the milestone into manhood and womanhood alone.

As we journey on, may the true, lasting friendships formed here be remembered through these pages.

DOROTHY GORDON ANDREWS

Then and Now

The hush of the sea-wind caresses the dunes and sand,
And the little gulls sleep where the sea laps the end of the land.

But now the gulls must leave their reed-spun nests
And seek the foamy crests upon the sea.
Aloft great panic strikes their timid breasts,
As memory recalls their nursery
Along the sandy margin of the shore.
They loved the glistening waves that laughing pressed
The sand; but now at dawn this flock will be
A throng of wings above a boundless sea.

Tonight we turn our thoughts to then and now:
With doubtful steps we pause before we leave,
For here has kindness dwelt and taught us how
The boon of friends may always gayly weave
Into our ways a brief security,
For help and care may bring tranquillity.
And now half falteringly we take our leave,
As sea-gulls, pilotless, but ever free,
At sunrise leave the rocks and fly to sea.

When dawn shall lay the morning at our feet,
Shall we not wonder where our distant flight
Will lead, and what our many hopes will meet?
Shall we not pause uncertainly tonight
And falter to behold that boundless sea
Holding for each an unknown destiny?
Shall we not wish our wings were not so fleet
To bear us from these ways of kindliness
Where azure day shall offer more or less?

The hush of the sea-wind caresses the dunes and sand,
And the little gulls fly where the sea laps the end of the land.

Class History

Freshman Year

The looms were set up, all ready and waiting. Unbelievable as it may seem, those four long years ago, we majestic seniors were all timid, cowering freshmen, burdened down with threads to weave into a complicated tapestry which would go down as a record of our work in the school. Each member wants to weave his contributions into the pattern. Some, with their feats, would help to make up the brilliant colors, while others, not quite so outstanding, would supply the steadfast, durable shades.

We began immediately to lace in those green threads which down through the ages have marked too plainly the blundering newness of freshman classes. Although we were not given the customary Freshman Reception, we felt sure we were cordially received, as we squirmed in and out of the corridors and collided with the haughty upperclassmen who knocked down our tottering pile of books. In choosing our first leaders, we showed our good judgment by electing John Loizeaux as our president.

We wove our noble school colors, red and blue, into our pattern, as we loyally trudged to all the athletic games and loudly cheered, even if we were not quite certain of the ins and outs of every sport. In swimming we had a special interest because of Johnny Hartlein who saved the reputation of our class by his outstanding ability.

The very few other brilliant colors were intertwined by Celia Phillips and Ellen Pierson who contributed their talent to the original musical comedy of the school, "Echoing Hearts."

It was not an easy year; but we were patiently tolerated by our superiors. There were all those dull browns and grays, even blacks, which we had to live down, colors that stood for those countless, fearful mistakes and mix-ups we had caused. But at least one-fourth of the tapestry was completed.

Sophomore Year

In 1930 we returned with renewed vigor to continue our partly woven tapestry which was to be handed down to future generations to keep alive our memory. All the drab colors of our freshman year were forgotten. We determined to brighten them with the glory of the year that lay ahead. We began by weaving in a pattern of purple, the color of glory and superiority. Were we not indeed far above the childish freshmen? Life loomed ahead, big and rosy; among the noble purple strands we added red, to show our courage and determination.

One day we noisily assembled in the auditorium to elect officers. These fortunate ones: John Loizeaux, Melville Farrington, Bill Blatz, and Marian Bressan all wove bright colors into the tapestry as a testimony of their victory.

Meanwhile, out on the athletic field, in the gym and pool, our classmates were not idle. Many outstanding players helped to complete our tapestry by weaving in their threads of mixed red and blue. Some of these were Bill Wilson, outstanding in football; Gil Ball, Bruce Henry, Charles Savelli, and Whitey Siergiez, in baseball; Daley, in track; and Hartlein and Rugen, in swimming. Min Berger also added a thread to show her skill in tennis.

Unfortunate as it seems, all our colors could not be bright. Examinations threatened: first the mid-years and then the finals. After each catastrophe, many black and many gray threads appeared, making a very gloomy pattern. But all things come to an end, even sophomore years. And at last, after weaving in a brilliant array of silver strands intermixed with gray to illustrate our mingled joy and regret at leaving, we plunged into summer vacation.

Junior Year

One half of the task was completed. Time had sped, and with two years before us, full of pleasures and privileges, it was appropriate for us to choose as our background color, blue for happiness and contentment.

The first few pink threads that blend so well with the pattern signify femininity, for we had elected as our class officers, four capable girls with Dot Andrews as president.

Then we began immediately by scoring a brilliant success with our first big dramatic production, the Junior play. That remarkable Emmett Sweet had Broadway gasping as he appeared in "His First Dress Suit", and also gave his audience a view of what the well-dressed young man wears under a dress suit.

The next event was a flaming red one. The seniors roasted our faulty members, but again we were a year too late for all the fun. The Cane Rush, which was enjoyed by so many of the classes before us, had been abolished.

The red and blue of Plainfield High again came into our pattern as we proudly witnessed Pat Perretta and Joe Widoson crashing through our rival's football line. Johnny Hartlein, with Dave Rugen, shot through the water, making our school and class famous for swimming victories.

Our participation in dramatics was by no means ended. More than half the cast of our bi-annual musical comedy, this time "Jerry of Jericho Road", were members of this celebrated class. Leads were played by Emmett Sweet and Marjorie Clark.

This year there were comparatively few dull colors, but then there are always hard spots to pass over. Down deep inside, we had that grand feeling that we had so pleasingly and skillfully finished three-fourths of a tapestry, and the quarter which still remained held the best prospects of all.

Senior Year

In September of 1932, we returned as seniors in a golden haze of glory. At last we had reached that noble station for which we had been laboring three long years. We were dazzled by our own splendor, and modestly believed that we dazzled all others. But we by no means neglected our growing tapestry. We wove a sparkling design of gold and purple bordered with brown to show our high position and added responsibilities. Under the able leadership of Preston Morgan, John Hartlein, Doris Beck, and David Rugen, we set out to accomplish great things.

The red and blue colors of athletic prowess were not absent from our tapestry. The following noteworthy athletes won us honors: in football, Widoson, Perretta, Wilson, Henry, Wimmer, and Savelli; in basketball, Swerdloff, Hussey, and Smith; in swimming, Hartlein. Among the girls, Dot Andrews, Celia Phillips, Min Berger, and Doris Beck were outstanding.

Just before Christmas, we relieved our hurt feelings, acquired the year before, by roasting the juniors. We trust that they have profited and will profit greatly by our advice. The same afternoon, as part of our Christmas celebration, we attended their dance. Artists, appreciative of fine textile work, will trace these memorable events in the gay pattern of our tapestry.

The many gloomy threads that appeared next were the result of the mid-year exams. But behold the golden strands! A few weeks later we startled and delighted the countryside with our brilliant presentation of "Berkeley Square," our class play.

Towards the end of our precious last year we settled down to a good hard grind, for final exams, and college entrance exams loomed threateningly ahead. Then came graduation will all its pleasure and glory, and we were "finished" at last—a little tearful about it, too! We had accomplished what we had come for, and were ready to embark on a new adventure with eagerness tinged with reluctance. In the pattern we wove our final threads of gold and silver on a background of gray.

Our tapestry is finished, and we hand it down to you for your approval. It is our record of what we have suffered, enjoyed, and accomplished in Plainfield High School. It also bears a hint of what we are to be, for every past suggests a future. As for us, we need no reminder. Shame on us if we ever forget our school!

Plainfield, New Jersey
January 1, 1945

The Honorable Preston Morgan
Hotel Mayflower
Washington, D. C.

Dear Pres:

Well, it won't be long now before you are eating breakfast in the White House. As soon as you are comfortably settled, I will be down to help you pick your cabinet. Believe me, boy, I have some wonderful material. Where did I get it?—just from a few sittings with the old televisor! And say, isn't the old class well represented? By the way, television, with its three-dimension image and true tonal reproduction, is some improvement on the old noise jumblers we had a decade ago, those old radio receivers.

A flip of the switch—Hawaii and John Hartlein beating the natives at their own game in the water. Good old John, "all wet" and truly a great Secretary of the Navy.

Now the screen shows the stage in Radio City, and who but Emmett Sweet is its center out-Barrymoring Barrymore! As Secretary of State, I am sure, all Europe will succumb to his dulcet utterings, and we may collect a few more nickels on war debts.

My next surprise is a beautifully appointed studio and a wonderfully charming female giving a talk on good behavior, table manners, etc., just demonstrating how hot soup is manipulated in the best society. Of course, you and I belong to the old school and have found out by experience that it is best to blow on it. But back to the lady, none other than Virginia Repp, and a wonderful Secretary of Etiquette.

Behold, the gigantic N. Y. Philharmonic—5,000 pieces, more or less—Arturo Toscanini conducting and Walter Peacock, guest artist. Toscanini steps down and hands the "stick" to Walter. Above the sound of the heavy brass I think I heard the snores of the maestro, but be that as it may, Walter for Secretary of Music. He has promised to conduct the musical program for your inauguration on the 20th.

But there is more music,—a mighty jazz orchestra under the direction of Bill Codington, still filling in with the old trumpet, and truly "King of Jazz." So, Secretary of Syncopation for Bill. Have already advised Bill that his orchestra has been chosen for your Inaugural Ball.

See next New York's swankiest and most exclusive rendezvous, the "Trembling Turtle", noted for its charming hostess, Marcelle Frey, solving the Secretaryship of Entertainment to everybody's satisfaction.

Look, a miracle, a great gathering of women listening, in silence, to a woman speaker. I was truly astounded until I recognized the speaker, Dot Andrews. Dot is president, as you undoubtedly know, of the "Amalgamated Federation of Lady Voters" and certainly qualifies for any assignment you may give her.

But see the crowd approaching as the image changes on the screen. Is it a battle royal? No, just a male beauty contest and won by Bob Wimmer, author of that best seller "Thru Darkest Africa with Powder Puff and Lipstick." We will have to do something for Bob even to the creation of a new bureau; but more when I see you.

Shades of Bobby Jones! Did you see that drive, an easy 600 yards, by none other than Melville Farrington? That settles the post of Secretary of Golf, hole-high.

The image now is Barbara Hadden, reciting one of her own immortal masterpieces—"The rose is red, the violet is blue, etc." Can't you almost hear it, Pres? That gives Barbara the crown of Poet Laureate.

An art exhibit and the crowd admiring a marble statue! Why, of course it is the Venus de Milo, and the sculptor has not forgotten the arms as all the others have. Now for the artist, just as I thought, Marian Bressan, and a great Secretary of Fine Arts.

Still another contest, the carrying of steins of beer without spillage. The winner, Bruce Henry, 23 in each hand. There seems to be a controversy in regard to the loss of contents, but Bruce has convinced the judges that the shrinkage is due to evaporation and nothing but. This solves the problem of Secretary of Transportation.

And now three stalwart figures appear: Peretta, Wilson, and Widoson, the "Three Musketeers" of one of High's best teams. You remember how deceptive these boys were on the field and how they could pass the ball, all wonderful training for Secretary of War and his Assistants. I suppose they will be just as adept at passing the "buck" in their new job as they were with the ball on the gridiron.

What now, the three Graces? Why if it isn't Fay Felch, Doris Beck, and Mildred Gilbertson. We'll let the girls run the Bureau of Social Functions on a joint responsibility basis and get that off our minds.

Now comes the crowning of a champion at the West Side Tennis Club, or is it Cedarbrook? The champion, Minnie Berger and worthy of the post of Secretary of Athletics.

Is this an auction? No, only graduation exercises at our largest college. You know Eloise Courter and Molly Mintz are at the head of it and just now are conferring a few honorary degrees on Mary Kuhlthau. Eloise, Molly, and Mary could run our Department of Education to the queen's taste. Eh, what?

Well, well, who but Bill Fitch holding forth in the inner circle of Prof. Einstein's Seminar of Mathematics at Princeton—the discussion is over my head, but must be good judging by the rapt expression on the professor's face. You know, Pres, Bill was always on the inside, so what a Secretary of the Interior!

Exit with television and just one more thought before I close. I will take the post of Coördinator General and any other Secretaryships you might have trouble in filling, like Treasury, Commerce, Attorney General, etc., with the strict understanding that I get a percent of all receipts and disbursements passing through every department. I know you will agree with me as to this simple form of compensation, which any child can understand and which will avoid all expensive and silly investigations. You can, of course, give a statement to the press along these lines which will keep the public from lying awake nights trying to figure out who is getting it, and as mentioned before, the opposition would not have a thing on which to start an investigation. A little foresight and common sense go a far way. Am I right or am I right? Well, I'll be seeing you soon, and in the meantime keep your feet dry. As ever,

Your New Coördinator General,

Herbert Pluemer, Jr.

Football

THE Big Red Team's '32 season was very successful. The opening game with Bound Brook resulted in a scoreless tie. This game proved to be very drab due to the inexperience of both teams.

The second team encountered was Morristown. Plainfield hit its stride in the first quarter scoring two touchdowns in quick succession and winning by a 12-0 score.

The next battle on the slate was the traditional game with East Orange. This contest was one of the most thrilling of the season. Hard but clean football was played by both teams. East Orange was held for four downs on the four-yard line in the first quarter. Plainfield then marched down the field to a touchdown, the only score of the game.

The second half of the schedule opened with Phillipsburg. This proved to be one of the biggest games of the year. The "Stinemen" scored in the first quarter. Phillipsburg came back in the third quarter to score and kick the extra point. In the closing minutes of the game when a victory for Phillipsburg seemed assured, Plainfield threw and completed a long pass for the winning touchdown. The score was 13-8.

North Plainfield vs. Plainfield, generally an exciting game, was lacking color this year. Plainfield's goal wasn't threatened through the whole game. The score was 27-0 in favor of Plainfield.

Westfield was Plainfield's first defeat. A fighting Red Team, with the breaks against them, put up the gamest battle of the season. The first half had its share of thrills but did not produce a score. At the end of the third quarter, Westfield scored and connected for the extra point. In the last quarter Plainfield came back to score but failed to make the extra point. In the last minutes of the game, Westfield pushed over another touchdown. Westfield won 13-6.

New Brunswick, the final game, was not very exciting. New Brunswick won 6-0. It proves that New Brunswick is still the chief jinx of Plainfield.

Five games were won, two lost, and one tied.

Lettermen graduating are Captain Pat Perretta, Bruce Henry, Charlie Savelli, Joe Widoson, Bob Wimmer, and Bill Wilson.

Caesar Laratta has been chosen to lead the team for 1934. Best wishes from 1933 for a successful team.

Basketball

DUE to lack of lettermen and reserve material, the '33 season was unsuccessful. The team won three out of thirteen games and dropped the city series. "Yoody" Schwartz distinguished himself, although he played the majority of games with a bad foot. Somerville and Princeton were defeated and one game of the city series was won from North Plainfield. Five lettermen will be back for '34 and we wish them the the best of luck.

FOR the past few years swimming in P. H. S. has reached a high level. This year was no exception. Under the leadership of Captain Johnny Hartlein the team won four out of six dual meets. East Orange was defeated for the first time in eight years.

Plainfield placed fifth in the State Meet gaining thirteen points. Johnny Hartlein and Hendrick Van Oss placed second and fourth respectively in their events. The relay team placed first while the medley relay team was fourth.

Baseball

AFTER a lapse of one year, baseball has returned to P. H. S. The schedule for this year is very strong. The city series with North Plainfield, always an exciting event, will be played at twilight. This establishes a new precedent.

Our chief rivals—New Brunswick, Westfield, and Bound Brook will also be played this year.

Four lettermen are still in school—"Pop" Savelli, "Ed" Siergiej, "Beans" Sabino, and John Kotyo. Siergiej and Sabino are sure to see action on the mound while Savelli will be behind the plate. Kotyo will play first base.

Track

THE prospects for a successful track season seem very bright. Eight lettermen in widely scattered events are in school as well as other point-scorers. Captain Ed Ryan and "Red" Courain are favorites to win or place in the State Meet. Ryan in the "100" and Courain in the discus. The team is pointing for the Rotary Meet this year hoping to come out on top. Other lettermen in school are Dominick Belardo, Ray Brady, Tom Daley, Bob Ernstrom, Lew Fusco, and Bill Wilson.

HIGH SCHOOL SENIORS TRIUMPH IN "BERKELEY SQUARE"

PLAINFIELD High School Seniors presented "Berkeley Square", a three-act drama by John L. Balderson before a large and appreciative audience in the school auditorium Saturday evening, March 4.

The play centers about Peter Standish and his experiences in crossing the borderland of Time and living the life of his English ancestor.

Emmett Sweet portrayed the role of Peter Standish with superb skill. So closely did he identify himself with the character that none of the subtleties was lost. He revealed a dramatic power that would compare favorably with that of a seasoned professional.

Patricia Sykes, as Helen Pettigrew, the heroine of the play, charmed the audience with her delicate grace and simplicity. Kate Pettigrew, her sister, enacted by Marcelle Frey, displayed a spirit and fire that was most captivating.

Tom Pettigrew, the blustering brother, was ably represented by Ralph Tornberg. Eloise Courter, as Lady Anne Pettigrew, was indeed the dominating dowager in the disturbed household. Mr. Throstle was a very real London dandy in Adolph de Matteo.

The original Duchess of Devonshire could not have been more lovely and graceful than our own Gertrude Lindhorst. William Blatz enhanced the striking uniform of Major Clinton. Lord Stanley, played by Harry Leary, was a truly dignified elderly statesman. Marjorie Clark was the attractive Lady Barrymore. Martin Larew was "built" for the part of the Duke of Cumberland and quite expertly added the accent and tipsiness. It was quite reasonable to suppose the pert maid, as played by Ethel Ryder, won the attention of the male member of the Pettigrew family.

Debating

PLAINFIELD High School's debating teams won two group decisions and tied on the third in the triangle debate against Westfield and Morristown. Plainfield won the student decision and tied the faculty vote in Westfield where they met the Morristown affirmative. The Plainfield affirmative team, debating in Morristown against Westfield, won the faculty vote but lost the senior class decision. Westfield followed Plainfield and won two group decisions and lost two, while Morristown won one, tied on one and lost two.

The question chosen for debate was: "Resolved: That the United States should recognize the Soviet government of Russia." This question at the present time is receiving widespread attention.

After the debate, the teams were treated by the host schools to a very delicious luncheon. The visiting students were then taken about the school and shown how various activities were carried on.

Miss Le Fevre worked tirelessly with both Plainfield teams preceding the debate, and assisted in the organization and presentation of the argument.

Plainfield's affirmative team was composed of Ruth Harmon, Norman Robbie, Wilbur Hogg, and Joseph McCoy, alternate. The negative team was composed of Harriet Doane, Robert Rosen, Adolph de Matteo, and Hendrick Van Oss, alternate.

The debating teams will probably meet several other high school teams before the curtain rings for 1933.
